

I think someone should come up with a better way of screening the clients that come into a psyc. hospital. One of the problems I see happening in the mental hospital is people coming into the hospital and they were not screened properly. they don't belong there. I think the clients should have some type of after program because they get out and come right back in. I also feel if a client comes in for a 30 day evaluation from jail, they should not be kept past that time just to beat the system. the psyc. house should be for the sick not the people who is beating the system.
